Evening Prayer and the Daily Office: A Lenten Worship Opportunity with Ancient Roots

Evening Prayer

By The Reverend Dr. Donald Black

Evening Prayer, like its sibling Morning Prayer, is rooted in the daily worship of the early Christians. Their order, in turn, had been copied from the worship patterns of the Jewish community - from which most of them had come.

By the second century, daily morning and evening prayers, as well as, psalms and canticles (sung scriptural verses) were adopted, and in some areas, readings and instruction were included. An evening service was introduced by a blessing of light and sometimes associated with an agape meal. These liturgies were soon referred to as the Daily Office. (In the Church's vocabulary, "Office" means a non-Eucharistic service, one that takes place in the choir or chapel.) The monastic communities prayed the Office, or differing versions of it, several times a day and the "perfected" edition of their usage and experience is found in our Book of Common Prayer. The traditional language version is found on pp. 37-73, and the contemporary version on pp. 75-102.

For years, Morning Prayer was the chief Liturgy for Sunday mornings until the 1979 Book acknowledged that the Holy Eucharist is "the principal act of Christian worship on the Lord's Day." Part of the popularity of Morning Prayer was that a priest was not required to officiate, which meant that small or rural congregations could survive when priests were only occasionally available. Additionally, the 1928 Holy Communion was lengthy, ill-arranged and priest-centered, which made Morning Prayer a readily preferred alternative.

Evening Prayer, which is simply Morning Prayer with an evening focus, will be back at St. Peter's this Lent; it will be read each Thursday from March 6th -April 10th at 5:30 pm. So come and get reacquainted with this old friend (and for some, a new one) and get further acquainted with the riches of the Book of Common Prayer, and discover what has proved to be a personal and enriching source of Lenten discipline and spirituality.

Need a Lenten Devotional at Noon, or a liturgical end to the day? There is a rite for that. Short on time? There is a rite for that too. Also, there is an app for that! Just search for 'BCP' in the iOS or Android app stores for a program that provides the day's office readings as listed in the prayer book, updated continuously for convenient and easy use on-the-fly.

In addition to the Morning and Evening Daily Offices, The Book of Common Prayer also offers offices for Noonday, Late Evening, and for the close of the day. You can also find shorter forms of each service for more convenient use by individuals and families. These make excellent devotionals and many people find them a meaningful addition to their Lenten disciplines. More information concerning the various rites, along with the orders for all of these services, can be found beginning on page 36 of the BCP.

St. Peter's JOY Group on the Move! Coming Up: A Trip to the Breman Museum

First, our JOY group will enjoy a guided tour of the Return To Rich's exhibit: The Pink Pig. Fashionata. The Magnolia Room. The Great Tree. These terms evoke memories of Rich's. The Breman Museum is bringing Atlanta's favorite store back for an exciting interactive exhibition that spans 150 years of Rich's history.

Then, we will be treated to a catered lunch crafted by in-house caterer A Kosher Touch and inspired by the Magnolia Room recipes. And finally, we will visit the signature exhibit Absence of Humanity: The Holocaust Years, 1933 - 1945. Absence of Humanity describes the systematic murder of six million European Jews by the Nazis and their collaborators. The story is told through historical photographs and documents, personal memorabilia and family pictures, and in the voices of those who survived and made new lives in Atlanta.

Monday, April 7, 2014
Depart St. Peter's at 8:30 a.m.
Return by 4:00 p.m.

Cost: $50 per person covers transportation, admission and lunch.

The trip is limited to 30 participants

Looking Back: A Trip to the Cathedral Antique Market

Due to unexpected winter weather, the JOY trip to the Cathedral Antiques Show was rescheduled to Saturday, February 1. But neither the snow Armageddon of 2014 nor the delay could keep the JOY group and guests from some antiquing retail-therapy! In all, 28 travelers made the journey to Atlanta. They enjoyed not only the antique store, but also Inspiration Avenue Exhibits, the Cathedral Book Store, flower displays, various speakers, lunch on the mezzanine, and more. The return bus was weighed down with books, stationary, artwork, jewelry, linens, lamps, a large leather wing chair, and the happy memories that arose from an activity-packed day!

-Editors' Note: Many thanks to Rev. Janice Wright for providing the Letters with the above information on this one-of-a kind JOY trip!

We each have a path that we are on. Sometimes we need time to stop and think about the steps that we want to take next. This time in a Christian person's life is Lent. Each year we pause and reflect on our life and where we are going. Are we being the best neighbor we can be? Are we honoring God? Do we love everyone as ourselves? What can we do to be better as we move forward? We will take some time to think about these and many other questions during this time of reflection. Before Jesus embarked on his journey in ministry he wandered the desert to discover what his ministry was going to be and discovered what he wanted to teach people. Examining yourself can be just as hard as figuring out which direction you should go next. We are all lost in the wilderness wandering around trying to find our path.

A Report from Missions and Outreach

By Peggy Nash

Because of the continued generous monetary donations of the parishioners of St. Peter's Episcopal Church, the church is able to support local and global outreach endeavors. Within the Diocese, these include Episcopal Charities Foundation and the Church of the Common Ground. Locally, parishioners' pledges support the following: Seminarian Scholarships, DIGS, Inc., Good Neighbor Ministries, Habitat for Humanity, Harbor House, Hospitality House, STAR House, Davies Homeless Shelter, Mercy Senior Care, Loaves and Fishes, and Soup Kitchen. A total of $51,300 is budgeted for these various organizations.

Additionally, many St. Peter's parishioners volunteer many, many hours to these local outreach non-profits organizations. There is always a need for additional volunteers, including helping with a Habitat Apostles' build planned for the spring. Watch your bulletins and email inboxes for the forthcoming date. St. Peter volunteers will be needed for this worthwhile project.

Editors' Note: St. Peter's is a viable and important part of the life of the Rome community. The work of the Mission and Outreach Committee actively supports many non-profit organizations locally as well as within the Diocese of Atlanta. To keep St. Peter's parishioners aware of how their pledges are used, the editors thought the readers would appreciate updates on our work in this area.

St. Peter's Soup Kitchen: Opening our Doors to the Community for Over Two Decades

During the last full week of each month, the sign can be seen on the sidewalk of 4th street outside Daniel Hall, inviting our fellow Romans to enjoy a hot meal and offering a much-needed chance to escape the elements in the heat of summer or the frigid cold of winter. Inside, volunteers like those pictured above prepare plates 'assembly line' style to the hundreds of quests we welcome into our doors.

St. Peter's Soup Kitchen Fills a Need

Another example of St. Peter's contributions to the people of Rome is its Soup Kitchen which serves hot meals to guests on the last week of each month. Sue Anderson and Bill Schoepski plan the meals, see to the procurement of supplies, and keep the daily teams informed of their duties each day.

The brain child of Patti Barron and Christie Thomason, the Soup Kitchen began about twenty-five years ago. At that time, the meals consisted almost exclusively of hot soup and cold sandwiches with a drink. Because of the generosity of businesses in Rome, the meals have evolved into much more. A typical week of meals in Daniel Hall includes a meat, two vegetables (or more), bread and dessert. Pasta from La Scala, salads from Harvest Moon, desserts from Food Lion, and breads and pastries from Panera help Sue and Bill vary the menus and please the guests. Food from the Atlanta Food Bank also supplements the choices.

Each team is made up of a captain and five to six sous chefs, a statistician, and a dish washer.

In 2013, 7066 meals were served with an average of 589 meals each month.

This organization is a non-profit offering support, advocacy and research on behalf of those living with a mental illness and their families.

The local chapter of NAMI meets Monday nights at the First United Methodist Church of Rome at 6:00 p.m. They also give free classes for those families living with mental illness as well as supporting better services for the people living with mental health issues.

Mental illness affects 1 out of every 4 Americans. Support the efforts of NAMI by buying a copy of Julie's book.

An Unusual Opportunity for Spiritual Growth and Reflection: Lent Madness Pits Saint against Saint in March Madness-style Elimination Rounds

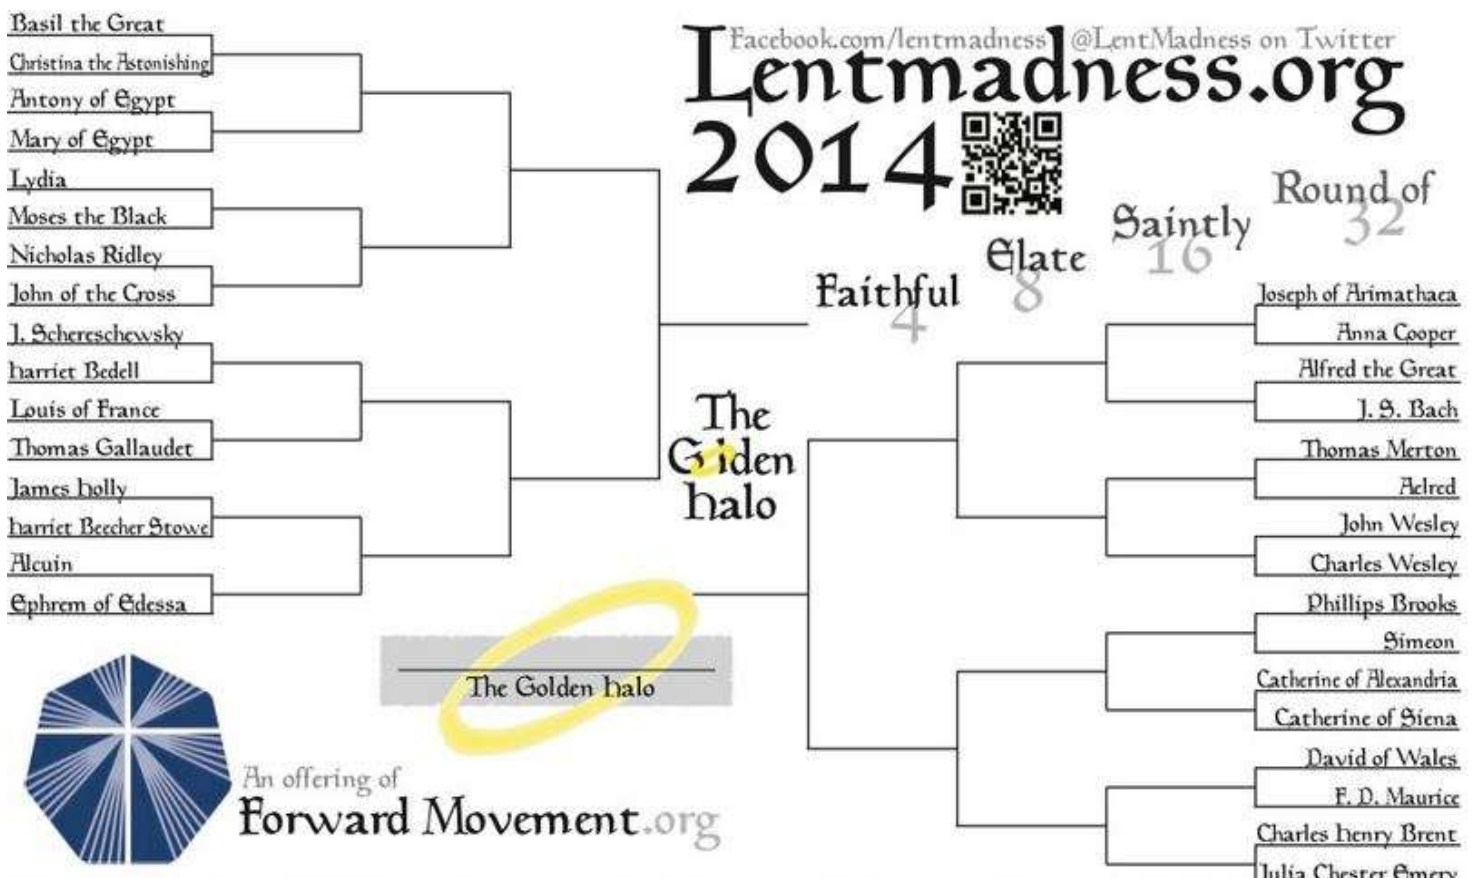

By Spencer Musick

The sports-savvy among us are no doubt familiar with March Madness, the yearly single-elimination championships of the men’s and women’s NCAA division I basketball league. Websites, twitter feeds, blogs, and sports newscasters go nuts dissecting every detail of the competitors, including the records and statistics of their most promising players to determine that year’s ‘teams to beat.’

What if we were to apply the same fervor for knowledge and attention to detail about the track record of individuals to the saints that, collectively, form a ‘cloud of witnesses’ upon which our own Christian witness is founded? Thanks to a project by the Forward Movement, which most of us are probably familiar with, we can do exactly that. “Lent Madness” is a website where, starting on Ash Wednesday, a plethora of lesser-known saints (and a few you might have heard of) will be pitted against one another in voting rounds. Each day, one saint will be eliminated and another will continue on to fight another day. This will continue until Spy Wednesday (the day before Maundy Thursday) when a winner will be given the “golden halo.”

The idea is that participants in the voting will study the life of each saint, and pick their favorite of the two presented every day. They can do so based on whatever criterion they choose: virtue, persistence, dedication to the Christian faith or to a particular monastic order or tradition, weirdest relics still preserved, best hair, or anything else.

By inviting us to immerse ourselves in the lives of saints who lived their faith through word and deed, “Lent Madness” beckons us to examine our own walk of faith and direct it more precisely toward God. This reorientation and examination in preparation for the Paschal feast is, after all, what Lent is all about. Visit www.lentmadness.org/about for more information.
